

SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

The Center for Dispute Settlement is proud to host an upcoming screening of the film, Dawnland, in honor of the National Day of Awareness for Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls (MMIWG2S) and 2SLGBTQI+ people, also known as "Red Dress Day," a day to raise awareness and remember those lost to violence. Dawnland is a documentary that explores the history of child welfare authorities removing Native American children from their homes in Maine, focusing on the nation's first government-endorsed truth and reconciliation commission investigating the devastating impact on the Wabanaki people.

We are offering the opportunity for businesses and agencies to sponsor this event, as a way to demonstrate your support for the critical work of awareness and advocacy for Indigenous Communities.

About The Center for Dispute Settlement

For 52 years, the Center for Dispute Settlement (CDS) has worked to create conflict-resilient communities by providing cost effective mediation and other alternative dispute resolution services to individuals, families, schools, and organizations. Established as a community dispute resolution center in 1973, the Center was the first of its kind in New York State and among the first three in the country. Our offices serve the eight counties in the 7th Judicial District, providing mediation, arbitration, restorative practices, dialogue facilitation, and conflict coaching.

In addition to dispute resolution services, CDS provides a suite of continuing education opportunities. Our community of mediators and apprentices are offered accessible, relevant information, practice-enhancing tools, and skill-building resources.

The Center is committed to the work of diversity/equity/inclusion/belonging (DEIB) and serves as a leader for social and racial justice across the region.
